GREAT ADVANTAGE

To Newfoundland Would Be the Hay-Bond Treaty.

So Says Extract from the London Morning Post.

The following extract from an article in the London Morning Post is clipped from the St. John's, N. F., Herald, and shows what the English think of the proposed Hay-Bond treaty and whom it will benefit:

"We still await news of the treaty which Sir Robert Bond concluded at Washington. It seems to hang fire a bit. The cause of the delay in ratification may be the absence of Mr. Chamberlain. I should like to have further particulars. I must confess the treaty would be of great advantage to the colony, and it seems a pity that any delay should happen to prevent the full amount of advantage being taken of the arrangement. When parliament meets perhaps some member will be good enough to put a question on this matter. Sir Charles Dilke is generally the custodian in the House of Commons of Newfoundland affairs, and I commend my remarks to his notice."

Now if the proposed Hay-Bond treaty would be a great advantage to Newfoundland, whose only exports are the product of the fisheries, how can it be of any benefit, or rather, how can it fail to be a heavy blow to the fishing interests of the United States?

French Shore Modus Vivendi Renewed.

A dispatch from St. John's, N. F., yesterday says that the legislative assembly has unanimously renewed the French shore modus vivendi for the current year, after a powerful speech from Premier Bond, who declared his conviction that the imperial government intended to redress the colony's grievances at the earliest possible moment.

Provincetown.

The damp, wet and foggy weather has interfered seriously with the work of loading steamer Alice M. Jacobs with frozen squid. About 40,000 pounds were taken on board as soon as she arrived, but since then operations have ceased. With favorable weather conditions, it is but a matter of a few hours to complete her loading.

QUICK TRIP.

Sch. Corona Only 18 Days on Grand Bank Halibut Trip.

Came Home in Three Days and Eleven Hours.

Sch. Corona, Capt. Charles Flygore, arrived this morning from Grand Bank, after an absence of only 18 days, with one of the finest halibut fares of the season. From 35,000 to 39,000 they call them, and nearly all white fish.

The fare was taken in three days on Grand Bank, 22,000 pounds being caught on the first set.

With this fine fare nicely iced and with a favoring easterly over the stern the Corona started for home, and how Capt. Flygore drove her is told by the fact that three days and eleven hours after they kept her off, the anchor was dropped in the home port. The sheets were hardly touched all the way home and she was certainly sent along for all there was in her.

Capt. Flygore reports speaking schs. Nan-nie C. Bohlin, Atalanta, Harvard and Pinto on Grand Bank.

Capt. Flygore, who has been transient skipper for two trips in the Corona and done finely, was some years ago skipper from the store of William H. Jordan. He has made a new and fine start and his friends hope for him continued success.
